now quariered at the Shoreham.

The visitors were received by Secretary Alger in the large reception room, adjacent to his private office. Speeches were made by former Governor Bullock, Mayor Woodward, and Messrs. Collier Neal, and Cabaniss. The speakers reminded the Secretary of the promise given by him to establish an army camp at Atlanta, and expressed surprised that the promise had not been fulfilled. They then reiterated the statement made at the banquet given in honor of the President at Atlanta, setting forth the natural advantages, to be found in their site for in their city, for the establishment of an Atlanta is 1,056 feet above the level of the sea, and still warm enough to suit the condition of the soldiers who have become acclimated to the heat of Cu-

Several regiments could be comfortably quartered in the large exposition and mu-nicipal buildings and a permanent camp established at the fort on the outskirts of the city. The healthful climate of Atlanta was also another advantage noted by the speakers. Never in the history of the city has a case of yellow fever been contracted, although many refugees and patients have been within its limits. A detachment of the Fifth U. S. Infantry is now at Atlanta, which is the headquarters of the regiment.

Secretary Alger in replying to the arguments of the speakers, said that he was greatly humiliated because he had been to keep his promise. He found, ipon further investigation, after making the promise, he said, that the special regu-lations of all Southern ports against the landing of troops from Cuba and Porto Rico were very strict.

Vessels which arrived from the West Indies at Savannah, Charleston, Brunswick and other ports in the Southern States, are required to remain in quarantine for a period of five days, in order to undergo thorough fumigation against yellow fever. This regulation is not enforced at the more Northern ports, and the Secretary therefore though it advisable to send the solution. fore though it advisable to send the sol-diers, which are to be broght from Cuba to be mustered out, to New York, in order to save the Government the expense of the five days' keeping. The Secretary inform-ed the delegation that if it could provide for the immediate transfer of the troops from the transport to the train, he would from the transport to the train, he would make Atlanta a permanent army camp for the summer. After an extended confer-ence between the delegation and the Secretary, an appointment was made for 4 o'clock today, at which hour a committee is to wait on the Secretary and learn his

THINGS THEATPICAL

Before one of the largest audeinces the Academy has held in many a long day Lieut. Dan Godfrey and his British Guards Band last night gave their final concert in this city. The gathering was quite as appreciative as it was great and its enthusiasm drew the fourteen numbers of which the programme was originally composed into nineteen. More than this was asked, but when 10 o'clock was reached before the first part of the bill had beeen finished. first part of the bill had beeen finished. Lieutenant Godfrey became less prodigal of his encores and responded only after the house had split its collective glove in an effort to touch his generosity. There were eight soloists down for selections—Messrs, Kettlewell, Atherley, Evans, Hughs, Ketskemity, Redfern, Campbell, and Byrne—and all were well received. The band distinguished itself by a display of the very merits that made its recent appearance at the Columbia a triumph. The only regretthe Columbia a triumph. Kansas Physician Alleges Attempts at Poisoning. Atchison, Kan., March 20 .- Dr. Peter C.

Geiss, a wealthy physician and politician of this city, and Miss Ella Gohu, a resident of Wrightsville, Pa., were married in York, Pa., in 1881, and shortly after came here to live. Mrs. Geiss at once assumed prominent position in religious circles, became a member of the Presbyterian church, a fashionable place of worship, and taught a class in the Sunday school with great success. She also became conspicu success. She also became conspicuous in social circles, and until Tuesday only a very few of her many friends knew of the painful condition that existed in the family. That day she and her fourteea-year-old daughter, Rose, quietly left Atchison and returned to her old home in Wrights-

Yesterday her bushand was induced to relate the story of her exile. It was a loveless marriage they had entered into, and for ten years past, although living in the same house and eating at the same table, they were almost like strangers. Love for the daughter, the husband says, influenced him in his desire to avoid a pub-lic ventilation of his sorrows, and he did not resort to extreme measures until he became convinced that his wife was deliberately engaged in arsenically poi his food. He cites an attempts to destroy him, the last being on February 14. Each time he was made very ill, and on three occasions would probably have died but for the fact that being a physician he knew how to counteract the effect of arsenic. Th last time he was poisoned, he says, the chemist at Kansas University told him that his stomach contained arsenic in large quantities.
